1. The Culture Hacker's Guide to Employee Experience (EX) Strategy: How to Design a Culture Your Brand Needs and Your People Want

- Why This Is Important: The employee experience (EX) industry is worth $300 billion this year, including investments in recruitment, wellbeing, skill development, and anything that will retain their people. However, many organizations that invest in their employees' experience produce little return and few desired outcomes, creating frustration and exasperation with owners, boards, and managers. Organizations and managers need to understand how to develop a strategy to ensure those investments of time and dollars deliver the desired outcome.
- Keynote Takeaways: This keynote is designed with the following outcomes for each participant:
 - i. Participants will understand what EX is and how it determines their organization's culture.
 - ii. Participants will learn about the key moments in an employee's journey and career with their organization and why these moments are critical to their employees' wellbeing, retention, and sense of belonging.
 - iii. Participants will understand what modern employees want and need from their employee experience.
 - iv. Participants will understand how various mechanisms and managers affect how employees feel about what they do and whom they do it for.

"Shane is an engaging and talented speaker who can keep the attention of audiences of all sizes and at all levels within an organization."

—Michelle DiTondo, CHRO, MGM Resorts International

2. Culture Is No Longer an HR Thing; It Is a Business Thing: Lessons in Building a World-Class Culture

- Why This Is Important: How your employees feel about what they do and for whom they do it determines how much effort they put into their work, how engaged they will be, and how long they will stay with you.
- Keynote Takeaways: This keynote is designed with the following outcomes for each participant:
 - i. Participants will understand what culture is and why it is considered critical to your brand.
 - ii. Participants will discover lessons from organizations around the world on what creates a great culture.
 - iii. Participants will review how to approach culture change and the key mechanisms to improve how your employees feel.

"We have had many great speakers to Hospitality New Zealand conferences, but few have delivered as much quality information with such passion. Shane Green was simply inspirational and the star of this year's conference."
—Bruce Robertson, chief executive, Hospitality New Zealand

3. Too Many Managers and Not Enough Leaders: Why Your Business Is Not as Successful as It Should Be, and What You Can Do About It Now

- Why This Is Important: Organizations grow and promote managers: individuals who excel at tasks rather than people. As such, many employees feel a lack of care and consideration from their manager and, therefore, underperform. Managers must understand how to inspire their employees to be their best and give it their all.
- Keynote Takeaways: This keynote is designed with the following outcomes for each participant:
 - i. Participants will understand the difference between management and leadership and why leadership matters when it comes to culture.
 - ii. Participants will learn how a leader inspires their employees to be their best.
 - iii. Participants will review the key moments in an employee's day where leadership matters.
 - iv. Participants will learn about the ten key leadership habits that every manager must master and do.

"Shane has 'cracked the code' when it comes to activating leaders to inspire their employees to deliver on the brand promise."
—Jim Pilarski, VP of HR, Hakkasan Group

4. How to Build Customer Experiences That Inspire Loyalty, Advocacy, and Raving Fans

- Why This Is Important: Customer experience (CX) is your most important marketing tool as customers share stories and offer feedback to others about a brand. While organizations aspire to be the best in their industry in terms of CX, less than half of those companies have a clear strategy to do so.
- Keynote Takeaways: This keynote is designed with the following outcomes for each participant:
 - i. Participants will discover why CX is important and how the best organizations approach it.
 - ii. Participants will learn why specific moments and behavioral psychology influence your customer's experience and happiness.
 - iii. Participants will understand the four P's of CX strategy and why people are the defining element for CX success.

"Shane is quite simply a phenomenal speaker and emcee who impressed both our board and attendees. His ability to strike the perfect balance of entertainment and business kept our audience focused through the three days of the conference. This was crucial to the success of our event."
—Barak Hirschowitz, president, International Luxury Hotel Association

5. A Culture of Innovation: Why It May Be Your Best Competitive Edge

- Why This Is Important: Many companies and managers claim to support creativity and innovation but have little insight into fostering a culture and environment where innovation is a reality.
- Keynote Takeaways: This keynote is designed with the following outcomes for each participant:
 - i. Participants will understand the difference between imagination, creativity, and innovation and how every person and company can get outside of the box.
 - ii. Participants will learn the six biggest threats to an innovative culture and how to overcome them.
 - iii. Participants will consider why scarcity of time and resources is a great catalyst for creativity.

"[Shane's] willingness and ability to tailor seminars to your needs, his inspiring presence, and his willingness to challenge an audience will further the success for your organization."
—John Kafka, CEO, DocuSpring Inc.
